David Walker's Stranded Nation is a recommended read for anyone, politicians and students alike, seeking to know the history of Australia's agonising over Asia; how it began, how it evolved and the passionate and colourful characters involved.

Stranded Nation is told with authority, insight and wit, and the satisfying readability of a good novel, and that makes it great history.

Stephen FitzGerald, writer, sinologist and Australia's first Ambassador to the People's Republic of China

For well over a century Australia's place in Asia has been at the forefront of public discussion and controversy. Stranded Nation is a searching examination of how a 'white' nation, harbouring deep anxieties about rising Asia, sought to convince both itself and its neighbours that it belonged within the Asian region. This is the strange story of Australia's momentous turn to the East.

David Walker's prize-winning history Anxious Nation: Australia and the Rise of Asia, 1850 to 1939 (UQP, 1999) has been translated into Chinese and Hindi. An Indian edition appeared in 2009. He co-edited with Agnieszka Sobocinska Australia's Asia: From Yellow Peril to Asian Century (UWAP, 2012). David Walker is an Honorary Professorial Fellow in the Asia Institute, University of Melbourne, and an Emeritus Professor at Deakin University. From 2013 to 2016 he was the inaugural BHP Chair of Australian Studies at Peking University, Beijing. He holds Visiting Professorships at Beijing Foreign Studies University and Renmin University of China. David Walker is a Fellow of the Academy of Social Sciences in Australia and of the Australian Academy of the Humanities. He is a Member of the Order of Australia.
