

Inclusive Teaching Toolkit

Quick and easy teaching tips, strategies and resources

Deakin has a very diverse community of students and staff that spans axes of difference including nationality, language, culture, gender, sexuality, religion, and socio-economic status. Inclusive teaching means rethinking the ways in which we teach, design and deliver curriculum and assessment in order that learning is engaging, meaningful, relevant and accessible to all students.

To teach inclusively is not just an aspirational goal: all Australian higher education providers are obliged under the Australian Higher Education Standards Framework (2015) to use inclusive teaching and learning approaches and practices:

[T]o accommodate student diversity, including the under-representation and/or disadvantage experienced by identified groups, and create equivalent opportunities for academic success regardless of students' backgrounds.

Deakin is at the forefront of implementing inclusive practices into teaching and learning and has developed the Inclusive Teaching Toolkit to help you find simple and inspired ways to:

- include, engage and motivate all of your students
- teach large groups of students more effectively
- adopt creative ideas to energise your seminar activities
- ensure your assessment tasks offer all of your students a fair test of their learning
- make your teaching resources accessible for students with a range of abilities
- make group work a more truly collaborative experience for all participants
- find answers to frequently asked questions as a new teacher here at Deakin.

To help you help your students, go to the Inclusive Teaching Toolkit now! Don't forget to subscribe to ensure you receive the latest news, events and teaching tips directly into your inbox.
